POETRY.

From the American Ladies' Magazine.
NIAGARA.

Flow on forever, in thy glorious robe
Of terror and of beauty—God hath set
His rainbow on thy forehead, and the cloud
Mantled about thy feet—And he doth give
Thy voice of thunder power to speak of him
Eternally—Bidding the lip of man
Keep silence, and upon thy rocky altar pour
Incense of awe-struck praise.

And who can dare
To lift the insect trump of earthly hope,
Or love, or sorrow,—mid the peal sublime
Of thy tremendous hymn?—Even Ocean shrinks
Back from thy brotherhood, and his wild waves
Retire abashed.—For he doth sometimes seem
To sleep like a spent laborer, and recall
His wearied billows from their vexing play,
And lull them to a cradle calm—but thou,
With everlasting, undecaying tide,
Dost rest not night or day.

The morning stars,
When first they sang o'er young creation's birth,
Heard thy deep anthem,—and those writhing fires
That wait the Archangel's signal to dispart
The solid earth, shall flid Jehovah's name
Graven, as with a thousand diamond spears,
On thine unfathomed page. Each leafy bough
That lifts itself within thy proud domain,
Doth gather greenness from thy living spray,
And tremble at the baptism. Lo! thou birds
Do venture boldly near, bathing their wing
Amid their foam and mist—'Tis meet for them
To touch thy garments' hem,—or lightly stir
The snowy leadings of thy vapor wreath.
Who sport unharmed upon the dizzy cliff,
And listen at the echoing gate of heaven,
Without reproach. But as for us,—it seems
Scarce lawful with our broken tones to speak
Familiarly of thee. Methinks, to tint
Thy glorious features with our pencil's point,
Or woo thee to the tablet of a song,
Were profanation.

Thou dost make the soul
A wondering witness of thy majesty,
And while it rushes with delicious joy
To tread thy vestibule, dost chain its step,
And check its rapture, with the hushing view
Of its own nothingness, bidding it stand
In the dread presence of the Invisible.
As if to a swer to its God through thee.

Kean's Story of a Gambler.—Among Kean's many social qualities, was that of telling an anecdote with a power that made it live before you. The person of whom the following story was told by him, we shall call Mr. A., for he is now living, and it is not to the purpose to annoy a reclaimed gambler by an exposure of his name. Mr. A. squandered away his fortune in wooing the fickle goddess at the fashionable balls, but he had one rule from which he never departed: if a winner, he invariably gave the first mendicant that met him a sovereign. It happened one wet night that he had been peculiarly fortunate; he had his pockets full of notes, and he was looking around in vain for a vehicle, when a shivering, drenched female accosted him, and implored charity. He felt in his pocket, he had neither gold nor silver; his humanity was not wrought up so high as a 5l. note, and, in fact, so violent was the shower, that it would have been washed from his grasp, ere he could have transferred it from his pocket to the hand of the applicant; he withdrew his hand from his waistcoat, and, with a hasty "No change," passed on, but not so quickly but that he heard a deep sigh. The beggar did not follow, nor further importune him; he walked hastily forward, but his conscience upbraided him; a sort of glowing fire seemed to tell him that he was lucky not to give the accursed largess,—a sort of sporting honor, to whisper that he was defrauding her of what was in a measure her due. He turned round and retraced his steps; the poor creature had huddled herself beneath the portico of a wealthy mansion,—he addressed her, and put into her benumbed hands a 5l. note. The unfortunate for one moment doubted the evidence of her senses; at the next, she fell at the feet of the gambler, and literally and actually embraced them, in adoration of her benefactor. "That moment," said the gambler, "was the most painful of my life; for the first time since the days of boyhood I wept,—nay, I fairly blubbered; I vowed never to game again. I shame to say, I have not wholly kept that vow." Kean added, to the honor of the votary of fortune, that though he had not, perhaps, strictly abstained from gambling, from that hour his habits were generally reclaimed, he had good feeling enough to obtain the poor woman a shelter for that night, afterwards procure her employment, and up to the period at which Kean told the story, she remained with credit to herself, and satisfaction to her benefactor.

The Painter David and the Duke of Wellington.—The Cabinet de Lecture tells the following as an authentic anecdote of a visit paid by the Duke of Wellington in 1815 to the atelier of the painter David, in Brussels, where he was at the time in exile. We find David in his negligé at work when the Duke entered, as yet unannounced; the noise of the spurs of the English party having attracted the painter's attention, the following is said to have ensued:—"Turning round, David saw the red uniform. 'Gentlemen,' said he, with a slight inclination of the head, 'whom have I the pleasure of addressing?' The foremost of the party replied, 'I am the Duke of Wellington.' David blushed at the name like a child, but immediately recovering, replied with an inexpressible coldness, 'Sir, what can I do to oblige you?—what is there here at your service?'" The Duke, surprised at the icyness of his manner, replied, "I wished to behold an artist of so much celebrity, and as you have painted Buonaparte."—"You mean the Emperor," interrupted David with a haughty tone, and blushing again with rage, he took off his old helmet, (which he invariably wore while painting)—"Exactly," said the Duke; "I have come, that you may take my portrait." David looked at him with a fixed gaze for some moments, and with an air of surprise, replied, "Sir, you must know I paint none but historical subjects."—"I know it—yes," replied the Englishman, affecting a smile; "I am not a being of romance; you have rendered illustrious with your pencil the head of this great man"—his finger pointing to the picture of Napoleon, on which the painter had been engaged when the party entered; "I will pay liberally for a portrait from so celebrated an artist."—"Sir," was David's reply, "I have already told you that I paint none but historical subjects. And besides—I never paint Englishmen." The painter turned round to the picture on which he had been engaged, as if there was no one in the room besides himself, upon which the Duke went away as he had entered, unpainted by David.

Responsibility of Gambling Houses in France.—A servant, under 21 years of age, having recently lost, at one of the gambling-houses of the Palais Royal, the sum of 669 francs, which belonged to his master, the latter brought an action against M. Benazet, who forms the gaming tables, for reimbursement of the sum lost. He maintained that according to the terms of the 16th article of the regulations imposed by the city of Paris on the proprietors of gambling houses, those establishments are directed to be closed against servants and minors, and that, according to the facts of the case, the proprietor was responsible for having broken the conditions of the agreement. The first chamber of the tribunal of the Seine have concurred in this view of the case, and condemned M. Benazet to repay the sum lost by the servant.

BOARD.—A young lady wishes for Board in a private family in the vicinity of Bowdoin square—inquire of W. P. COCHRAN, 112 Court

MONDAY, JANUARY 19, 1835.

Washington, Tuesday, Jan. 13th.

The sittings of Congress are waxing long, and a disposition is now manifesting itself to engage in the public business with earnestness and zeal.

This was the day appointed for the consideration of Mr. Clay's Report and Resolution upon our French relations, but the spoliation bill having the precedence, the day was consumed by Mr. Bibb, Mr. Prentiss and Mr. Webster, in the discussion of it, the former opposing, and Mr. Prentiss supporting the bill. Mr. Clay then gave notice that he would insist upon taking up his report to-morrow. Much excitement prevailed in relation to it, and in anticipation, a considerable crowd assembled in the Senate Chamber to witness the progress of that body upon the subject. It is evident that Mr. Clay's object is to raise a pretty considerable storm when it shall be taken up, and although the President is treated with great moderation in the Report, I am inclined to think Mr. Clay's speech will be marked by a very different tone. He don't invoke "war, pestilence," &c. now—the time when that calamity would have been preferred, has passed. And now that the man, whose elevation was looked to as worse and more to be feared than all that, is firmly planted in the confidence and affections of his countrymen, Mr. Clay's invocation is peace!

In the House, the Army Appropriation Bill was the subject of consideration chiefly, and it was ordered to be engrossed for a 3d reading.

Judge Wayne this day resigned his seat as a member of the House, and took his place on the bench of the Supreme Court.

Your attention has no doubt been arrested by the publication in the Globe of the printing account, "other than ordinary," of the U. S. Bank, taken from Mr. Tyler's Report. I wish it were in my power to draw the attention of every reader in this Union to that account. Some of the facts disclosed by the vouchers, I mean those which it has been Mr. Biddle's pleasure to disclose, exhibit such a palpable corruption of the press as every freeman should be apprised of. The subject would require a dozen letters to do it justice, and I can do no more than turn your attention to it.

We all know here the facility with which these "extraordinary" expenses were incurred during the panic session. All that was necessary to be done last winter, when a deposit member made a panic speech, was to send his manuscript to Messrs. Gales & Seaton, and order it to be printed at the expense of the Bank! Yea, by the hand of Confucius, hundreds of thousands of the speeches of members whose names appear in that account, were ordered to be printed at the expense of the Bank, solely upon the orders of members.

But, if I am not greatly mistaken, there is "a rod in the bundle" for Mr. Tyler, Mr. Biddle, and the rest of the craft connected with this business. Depend upon it Col. Benton is not idle, nor will he be unprepared when the report shall be called up for consideration. And although they will "fend off," yet you will see a set of men pinned to the wall in a way that will be a warning in all time to come, to faithless agents who attempt to tamper with and subsidize the public press.

We shall commence to-morrow the republication, from the Globe, of the "Proceedings of the Republican Celebration of the Extinction of the National Debt, and of the Victory of New Orleans," at Washington on the 8th inst.

"The Jackson papers dislike the idea of the Whigs nominating DANIEL WEBSTER, as the candidate for the Presidency."—Mr. Journal.

Not at all, Mr. Journal—there is no individual among the piebald, ring-streaked opposition, that the Democrats can defeat with more ease than Mr. W. He can carry, perhaps, the whole of Massachusetts—but the other twenty-three little States, which compose the rest of the Union, will be found on the other side of the hedge.

Accurate Mathematics.—The London Courier of the 11th of last month gives the following paragraph: "There are in the United States, says a New York paper, 300,000 drunkards. Suppose they were all to die to-day, and to be buried side by side in one continued line, allowing three feet for the width of each grave, and three feet between them—the line of graves would extend 3409 miles!"—Boston Gazette.

30,000 multiplied by 6 give 1,800,000 feet; divide this by 5200 feet, being the number of feet in a mile, and the product is 346 miles and 800 feet. We dare say the computation of the number of drunkards in the United States, is just as accurate as that of the length of their graves. What masses of human beings would follow! more than they drink of the ardent.

Matthias, the Prophet.—The Grand Jury of Westchester county have found a true bill of indictment against this individual for the murder of Elijah Pierson, in August last. The District Attorney, in consequence of the absence of material witnesses, moved a postponement of the trial until the next term of Oyer and Terminer, which was done, though opposed by the prisoner's counsel.

The Spanish Pirates.—Lemuel Gulliver has just published a supplement to the Trial of the Spanish Pirates, with the confessions or protests written by them in prison—the evidence in support of a new trial—opinions of Judges Story and Davis, and the sentence passed on the prisoners.

Delaware.—The Legislature of Delaware have re-elected the Hon. John M. Clayton to the Senate of the United States for six years from the 4th of March next.

Mrs. Hale's Magazine for January is the most interesting number she has published—it has been enlarged and is elegantly printed, and the Editor has secured such aid as cannot fail to render it one of the most agreeable as well as instructive periodicals extant. Her appeal to the patronage of her sex deserves their serious attention. A poetical extract from this number is upon our First Page.

Forrest.—It is currently reported in the green-room that Forrest is about to appear in the character of Spartacus, in Bird's tragedy of the Gladiator, on the London boards.

The Lowell people want a new County to be formed, and that place made its share town.

LATEST FROM EUROPE.

By the Liverpool, Capt. Dickson, the Messrs. Topliff have received Liverpool papers to the 22d ult. They contain very little news. The accounts from Paris are no later than those brought by the Poland.

London, Dec. 21.—After very serious deliberation, it has, we believe, been decided that the balance of public convenience is in favor of a dissolution of the existing Parliament. It is now understood that the dissolution is to take place on Friday next. The Standard says—"Parliament will be dissolved at about the last days of the year." The Parliament was on Thursday prorogued in the usual form, the ceremony taking place in the Lords Library, as upon the former occasion.

The new administration is nearly completed. Further appointments have been made. The Master of the Mint is not yet named. Mr. J. Pollock, Attorney General. Sir George Clerk and Sir T. Freemantle, joint Secretaries to the Treasury. Lord Mahon, under Secretary for Foreign Affairs. Mr. M. G. Dawson, Secretary of the Admiralty. Mr. Bonham, Storekeeper to the Ordnance. Mr. Winthrop Praed, Secretary to the Board of Control. Sergeant Pennington will be Attorney General, and Mr. Devonshire Jackson, Solicitor General for Ireland. Sir W. Gossett is likely to continue under Secretary. Sir W. Rae resumes his place of Lord Advocate of Scotland. Earle Howe, Queen's Lord Chamberlain. Earl Denbigh, Queen's Master of the Horse. Lord Maryborough, Postmaster General. Lord Lowther, Treasurer of the Navy and Vice President of the Board of Trade. The Marquis of Chandos declined a seat in the Cabinet. Col. Percival, it is said, will succeed Mr. Creevey as Treasurer of the Ordnance, and Lord Edward Somerset will be Surveyor General of the Ordnance. The Marquis of Londonderry is to be sent Ambassador to St. Petersburg. It will be recollected that he once figured in the same capacity at Vienna.

The London Gazette, of Friday night, contains additional official appointments—of Sir John Becket to the office of Judge Advocate General—Lord Ellenborough, with Sir Alexander Grant, Mr. John Sullivan, and Mr. John Planta, to be members of the India Board—Sir George Murray, Master General of Ordnance.

The London Gazette says that the Right Hon. Stapleton Viscount Combermere, the Right Hon. James Archibald, Lord Wharfedale—the Hon. Sir Edward Stuchell, Bart.—Sir James Scarlett, Knight—Sir Edward Sugden, Knight—and Alexander Baring, were, by command of his Majesty, sworn of his Majesty's Most Hon. Privy Council, and took their places at the Board accordingly.

Earle de Grey will be first Lord of the Admiralty in the room of the Earl of Aberdeen, who will be Secretary of State for the Colonial Department. Mr. Pendleton has declined the offer of the Solicitor-Generalship. An offer of the Solicitor-Generalship will be made without delay to Mr. Follett. This statement, as regards the appointments of Lord Grey and Aberdeen, is believed to be correct. The Earl of Haddington, who was the personal and political friend of Mr. Canning, will, it is said, have the Duchy of Lancaster, and Lord Granville Somerset will be first Commissioner of Woods and Forests. Mr. Follett has accepted the office of Solicitor-General. The Duke of Buccleugh goes as Lord Lieutenant to Ireland, and receives the vacant blue ribbon. Capt. Pechell retains his place as Lord of the Admiralty, under the present administration. Fitzroy Somerset does not resign, we presume.

It is stated that Cobbett is already turning against the Peel administration. The Morning Chronicle says his tone is very much changed.

The Solicitor-General.—Mr. Pennington, on his return to town on Wednesday night from Ripon, immediately forwarded to Sir Robert Peel his resignation of the proffered office of Solicitor General.

CONGRESS.

Wednesday, Jan. 14. In the Senate, Mr. Webster presented a petition from citizens of Boston, praying for the erection of a custom-house in that city; which was referred to the Committee on Commerce. After the transaction of some unimportant business, the Senate proceeded to the consideration of the Report of the Committee on Foreign Relations, and the resolution appended, concerning our relations with France. After some remarks by Mr. Clay, Mr. King proposed as a substitute a resolution that "as the French Chambers have been convened earlier than was expected by the President of the United States at the opening of the present session of Congress, it is inexpedient to pass any law relating to the treaty of 1831, until further information shall be received from France." Mr. K. supported the amendments, which was opposed by Mr. Clay—Mr. Webster thought that the importance of unanimity on this subject was so great, and the practical difference between the two resolutions was so small, that pains should be taken to throw them into a shape that the resolution could be adopted. Mr. Cathbert read the resolution, and said, if it was so worded as to express that, "under existing circumstances," or, "the state of circumstances now existing," it might meet the views of all parties, and enable the Senate to pass its unanimous vote upon the subject. A debate then ensued, in which Messrs. King, Leigh, Buchanan, Clayton, Clay, and Tallmadge took part. Mr. King ultimately adopted a suggestion made by Mr. Clay with regard to his amendment; when it was unanimously adopted by the Senate, as follows:—

Resolved, That it is inexpedient at present to adopt any legislative measure in regard to the state of affairs between the United States and France.

The House resolved itself into a Committee of the Whole on the state of the Union, Mr. Hubbard in the Chair, and took up the bill (No. 600) making appropriations for forts and fortifications of the United States, heretofore commenced, for the year 1835. After some ineffectual attempts to amend the bill, together with one making an appropriation for the completion of the Military Barracks in New Orleans, was reported to the House.

Miss Jarman—whose success here has been such as her superior talents should secure everywhere—takes a benefit at the Tremont, this evening. She played to excellent houses during the last week, and we have no doubt there will be a great demand for tickets to-day. No person of taste can fail to be fascinated by her acting—its quiet, rich, unobtrusive merit, secures at once the favor of the audience. Mr. Terman is also a great favorite—in some characters, we have hardly seen his equal—in the Stranger, for instance. It will be seen that he appears to-night.

Warren Theatre.—Mrs. Pelby will take a benefit this evening, as Lady Macbeth—a character which she always personates with great fidelity, energy, and imposing effect. Mr. P. appears as Macbeth, and Mr. Blake as Macduff. The evening's entertainments will conclude with Mr. F. S. Hill's latest jeu d'esprit, Cuvid on Crutches.

A narrow escape.—Within a week, a great number of persons have amused themselves by skating in our harbor, or by walking to the islands in the vicinity, and in witnessing the operations of the workmen clearing a passage to the lower harbor. On Friday two Irishmen started from the head of Central wharf, with the intention of going to the Castle, and had proceeded about half way, when one of them fell through a hole which had been cut, and only lightly frozen over. A number of persons rushed to the spot, and with difficulty succeeded in saving him, the tide having swept him beneath the ice.—Merc. Jour.

The thermometer at Charleston has been as low as 18; the sidewalks and streets covered with ice!

POLICE COURT.

An Argument.—James Haley and Michael Naylor were arrested, by the watch, for a very violent assault on James Healy, in Ann street, in the night time. The watchmen knew nothing of the origin of the fight, but came to the scene of action, after it commenced, while the prisoners were both actively engaged in putting the work into kill, on Healy, whose head was broken, and eye badly bruised; it therefore rested with the poor fellow to unravel the matter, and he accordingly elucidated as follows:—

"Your honor will see, as how I was going to me home wid myself, all alone wid nobody else, when I met the biggest of these two byes—thim two gintilmen standing afore ye, that used me in such a nasty kind of a nasty way—well, he was none of my acquaintance, but out of common courtesy and civility, I says 'good night til ye,' and wid dat he up wid this ship, and made a fetch of a tip towards me head; but I pit it aff wid me elbow, that fates not a haphorth the better for the clip it caught. Well, he brought me another rap, which I laid back wid me arm, which wont forget it these tin days, and may be more—I thought he was only in fun, and wanted a bit of a sky lark; but as I could not stop to play wid him in that fashion, I jist raised me umbrella, to find off, and let him know I didnt want for to be making a disgrace of meself in the strate—he thin brought me a crack, which cut me eye, and I thought he was in real earnest, so I difinded meself as tight as I might wid me umbrella, which was soon smashed, by rason of his stick, and a tip I give him on the head—and while our argumint was going on, nathur of us being intirely satisfied, as the stick of me umbrella was still whole—he continued on bating me, till the oder one, Mike, came out to his relafe, because the stick, as your honor may see, which he used, was somewhat heavy til lift, and his arm was tired—so then Mike, having relafed him, commenced bating me too, and, so be-thinking me that he might not stop soon, I thought to meself, I'd run into some place of shelter, and so I jist bolted into a small bit of a tinminit, and as there was a bed spread doon upon the floor convenient to the doer, I stumbled across it, widout intending any harm to anny one whatsoever, and didnt know I'd kilt or hurt anny thing, till I heard a small bit of a child, or a piggy, mayhap, I can't tell which, squeal out, and a woman raise up like one from the dead, and say, 'O nurther, git out, ye brute—is that the way to use an honest woman?' A bye thin came from a back part of the apartment, which being so: ewhat small, all the sides were conveniently nare, and took hault of me by the fut and dragged me into the strate, where the other two applied themselves to me agin, till the watchmen cam up, by rason of my calling 'murder,' because I thought they might kille me."

Mike called a witness in his favor—the man who had ejected the sufferer—but he only testified—"I was paining all to go to sleep, when the bye burst into the room, and fell over Mike's wife and child"—from which it appeared, that the unhappy fugitive had fled from the lion to his den, and had actually laid down with the lioness and her whelp.

The prisoners were committed to jail, and the witnesses, including the "ship" a yard long, and three inches round, were ordered to appear as witnesses in the Municipal Court.

Alexander M. Donald, one of Uncle Sam's marine heroes, in worsted lace trimmings, was arrested for an assault on a lady in the street. As a gentleman and the lady were walking home through Dene street, they were followed by Yellow Lane, who kept treading on the lady's heels, and replied to the gentleman's question, demanding an explanation of his conduct, that he "liked to smell where there was good fish."—He was sentenced to pay a fine of $2.00, and give bonds of $50 to keep the peace, in default of which he was committed to jail, where he will have no opportunity to smell fish of any kind—good, bad, or indifferent. He was very indignant that a "marine could not be permitted to speak to a lady in the street, without being caught up by the watch, and the court that backed them up in it, would not stand long."

Assault on the Watch.—Three watchmen discovered some fifteen fellows dragging out a man from a house in Broad street, and after each of them had given him a thump, they muzzled him in the snow. The watch immediately went to rescue the injured one, and seized Cornelius Bowen, one of the fellows engaged in the outrage upon him. Bowen seemed to yield readily to the authority of the watch; but watching an opportunity, while the vigilance of his captor relaxed, seized him by the throat, and attempted to weigh him down, and was assisted by half a dozen of his companions who jumped upon the watchman's back. After a smart tussle, in which the watchman was nearly smothered, Bowen was effectually secured.—Committed for trial at the Municipal Court.

Columbus, Georgia, Jan. 3d, 1835.—Another Steamboat Burnt.—The boat Eloise, new, and had only been up here once, and took in a load of cotton, on her way down was burnt at a place near the forks of the river. The fire was discovered first in the hold, about daylight in the morning, and the passengers and crew very narrowly escaped, except the steward, who was drowned. The boat cost $15,000, and is a total loss. No insurance.

We are indebted to Messrs. Topliff for a file of Gibraltar papers to the 29th of November, and Cadiz to the 7th of December. Their contents are unimportant.—The cholera was subsiding in some of the provinces of Spain, and a Te Deum had been sung in Barcelona on the occasion. In Badajoz this terrible disease still rages with great violence.—Merc.

Throughout the whole southern country extremely severe weather has been experienced. A fall of snow at Augusta had occurred, to the depth of an inch, on Sunday night. A severe storm of rain at Charleston commenced on Thursday night, the 7th, and continued until the Saturday following, accompanied by high winds from the north-east. Several disasters had resulted from the gale.

We are informed by a letter from a friend at Carrollton, Mississippi (says the Augusta Courier), that the election, which ended on the 8th Dec. has resulted in the selection of Greenwood Leflore, late Chief of the Choctaws, to represent Carroll county in the next legislature of the State of Mississippi.

Mail Robbery.—The mail between Branford and St. Thomas, U. C. has been recently robbed of between $1200 and $1600, part of the money belonging to the Agricultural Bank of Toronto.

POSTSCRIPT.

The Southern Mail arrived a little before one o'clock this morning.

CONGRESS.

In the Senate, on Thursday, the joint resolution, providing for the amendment of the Constitution, in relation to the election of President and Vice President of the United States, was taken up for consideration, and after some remarks by Mr. Benton, Poindexter and Buchanan, laid on the table. The bill to distribute for a limited time, the proceeds of the sales of public lands, among the several States, &c. came up for consideration, and, on motion of Mr. Poindexter, was postponed to Wednesday next.

In the House, nothing of interest was done.

From Jamaica.—By the ship John W. Cate, Capt. Crane, we have received Jamaica papers to the 19th ult. The Herald of the 17th says:—

An alarmingly unpleasant report reached Kingston yesterday morning, that the apprentices on Hector's River, in Manchester, the residence of Mr. Spittal, were in such a state of insubordination, as to render it prudent for Mr. Spittal and his lady to quit the property.

We have also heard that the peasantry of Golden Grove, in the Plantain Garden River district, have again shown symptoms of a disposition to set authority at defiance. Christmas is rapidly approaching, and it is highly expedient that all should be on their guard against a possible sudden and simultaneous outbreak among the apprentices.

From a Correspondent, Dec. 9.

"The apprentices of Hanover are so pierced by Cupid's darts, that no less than 30 banns were published last Sunday. This looks well, and may end well."—Jonr. Com.

MASSACHUSETTS LEGISLATURE.

In Senate, Saturday, Jan. 17.—The order committing so much of the Governor's message as relates to the Public Lands, came up non-concurred; laid on the table.

Sundry petitions from the House; severally concurred.

The account of the expenditures for improvements and furniture of the Senate Chamber, were received from the Clerk. Mr. Williams for the Committee, reported that said accounts had been correctly cast and that the expenditures had been judiciously made and in conformity to the resolution by which they had been authorized; said report accepted. The Committee reported a resolve for the payment of furniture, &c., for the Senate Chamber; accepted. Adj.

In the House of Representatives.—The House was called to order and the journals read.

Mr. Baylies for the committee to whom was referred the order presented by Mr. Pierce, reported that the committee were aware that much difficulty had arisen heretofore on the subject of contested elections, but that sufficient time could not now be allowed to inform the people on the subject. They therefore considered that any order on the subject at present would be wholly inexpedient; the report was laid on the table and made the order of the day for Monday.

Petitions.—Of Jacob Jackson, a State pauper, for additional aid; of Joseph Hardy a revolutionary soldier, for the ordinary allowance of land or money; of 53 inhabitants of Dennis for a bridge over Swan Pond River in said town; of sundry persons for change of names; of Erastus Thompson for the extension of a wharf at the north part of the city of Boston; of David Ames and others for authority to construct a rail road from Springfield to Hartford, severally referred; of President and Directors of the Winnesimmet Bank for a change of name and other purposes; referred in concurrence.

Petition of Samuel Frost and others came down; non-concurred.

Estimates of a County Tax from Dukes County was presented and referred to the Committee on County Estimates.

Tuesday, 27th inst. at 11 o'clock, was after some discussion assigned for the choice on the part of the HOUSE, of a Senator to Congress, in the place of Nathaniel Silsbee, resigned.

The special Committee to whom was referred the petition of Lot Mason, an Indian, reported that the same have leave to withdraw.

Committee on Education reported the same on petition of Ebenezer Luce.

Bill to incorporate the Beverly Academy; passed to 3d reading.

Bill to authorize a Fire Department in New Bedford; passed to be engrossed.

Order of motion passed on petitions of Ebenezer Franklin, J. W. Revere, and Thomas C. Amory, Jr.—Severally in concurrence.

At half past 11 o'clock, the two Houses met in convention, for the purpose of qualifying Asa W. Wildes, as Counselor, to which office he has been elected.—Adjourned.—Merc.

Judge Morton has published an able and dispassionate letter, with evidence, which prove conclusively and unanswerably the falsehood of the handbill, issued by the three "responsible" gentlemen of Middleboro'. Judge Wood has published a long answer to it in the last Whig, which more resembles the futile scolding of an irritated old woman, than the dignified reply of a judicial officer. The embarrassment of the Judge of Probate arises from the consciousness that he has circulated a misrepresentation, which he has not the magnanimity to retract. He and his associates, with a view to excite a prejudice against Mr. Borden in the minds of antismen, asserted that Judge Morton had represented Mr. Borden to be a Jackson man. They cannot now escape the conviction that this assertion was entirely false, and that they had not any sufficient ground for the assertion; and yet they are unwilling that this should appear lest it should affect injuriously their favorite candidate. They will not do justice, nor own the truth, lest it should aid the election of Mr. Borden. "All is fair in politics," is the maxim of one of the leading editors of their party, and the maxim seems to have been fully adopted by Judge Wood and his coadjutors.

The Judge virtually admits the reputation of his handbill, because, instead of attempting to controvert the evidence, he cavils about trifles and deals in surmises, insinuations and assertions without proof, and in ungentlemanly vituperation.—Taunton Sun.

Dennis Callahan, the boy who took a bundle of money from the Post Office in this city last March, and was sentenced to the Common Jail for two years, has received a pardon from the President, and was discharged on Saturday.—Briggs.

The number of fires in Philadelphia last year was 90, and the amount of damage about $204,450; more than half of which was at the fire on Walnut street wharf in the month of January.

Accident.—Harvey Briggs, a clerk in the store of Mr. Stebbins, of East Cambridge, in passing from Cambridge Port to the Mill Dam, yesterday, fell through the ice, about midway between the two places. His cries for assistance brought several persons to the spot, by whose prompt assistance he was rescued, and taken to Brown's Hotel, from whence, when sufficiently recovered, he was taken to his home.

MARRIED.

In this city, by Rev. Mr. Young, Benj. Goddard, of Brookline, to Catharine Brown.

DIED.

In this city, Zeba Roberts, 37; Edward Hammock, 35; Jan. 23.
